Computer Operator and Programming Assistant

- During my ITI training in the COPA (Computer Operator and Programming Assistant) trade, I participated in a group project where we developed a college website as part of our practical training. This project helped me gain hands-on experience in web design and development using basic web technologies. I contributed to the design, layout planning, and content management of the website. Though it was a team effort, I actively collaborated and improved my understanding of real-life project workflows.
